Mary McCabe Must Answer for Robbing Her Benefactress.

Justice Watson, in the Ewen Street Court, Williamsburg, today, held Mary McCabe for trial on a charge of grand larceny. McCabe, a young woman, applied to Mrs. Maggie Sullivan, of 192 North Henry street, for assistance, saying she was starving. Mrs. Sullivan generously took the woman to live with her, and on Saturday the girl went away with clothing valued at $20, and $20 in money.

Carried a Slingshot.

Frederick McComber, an English sailor, was held for the Grand Jury by Judge Tighe, in the Ewen Street Court, Brooklyn, this morning on the charge of carrying a slingshot. McComber was arrested on April 6 for intoxication. When searched at the stationhouse the slingshot was found in his pocket.

POOL-ROOM IN COURT. Arguments Before Judge Freedman in De Lacey's Suit.

They Turn Upon the Constitutionality of the Ives Racing Law.

The case in the pool-selling case began this morning in the Ewen Street Court, Brooklyn, on the question of the constitutionality of the Ives Racing Law. The case was argued before Judge Freedman.

The case had been postponed from last Monday in order to allow John M. Bowers, who represents the Coney Island Jockey Club, to file a brief.

There were a lot of pool-room proprietors and attorneys in court to hear the argument. The appeal is taken from an injunction obtained by the Ives restraining Adams from carrying on a "commission" business at 43 West Twenty-ninth street, which is owned by De Lacey, who claims that the defendant's business is illegal and in violation of the Ives law.

The pool-room people say that the suit is a trick one, the object of which is merely to test the constitutionality of the Ives law. The argument was opened by Joel M. Marx, "Al" Adams' lawyer, who began by calling down Mr. Bowers, who he said, Mrs. Mary Brunner, 32 West 29th street, who he said had filed a brief which he had taken to the court.
